Grandpa's Garden

Fiction | 144 words | Central message

I read it: ☆ to myself ☆ to a grown-up ☆ to a friend

1 In April, Grandpa gave Ayaan a packet of tomato seeds. "Plant them, water them and wait," he said. Ayaan pushed the seeds into a pot of soil and watered them carefully.

2 The next morning, he ran outside to look. Nothing. The morning after that, still nothing. "Seeds are boring," Ayaan grumbled. "Patience," said Grandpa, sipping his tea. "Good things grow slowly."

3 After a week, tiny green sprouts poked through the soil. Ayaan moved the pot to the sunniest spot on the porch and watered it every evening. The sprouts grew into tall plants with yellow flowers, and the flowers turned into small green tomatoes.

4 In July, the tomatoes were finally red. Ayaan picked the biggest one and shared it with Grandpa. It was the sweetest tomato he had ever tasted. "Was it worth the wait?" asked Grandpa. Ayaan grinned. "Every single day of it."
